

Convict Trash

Run 1759: 3rd August 2020

Hare: Sniffer – Tarren Point

Starters Gun

We signed-in to the Taren Point Bowling club and dutifully took our seating in tables of 4 or 5 or 10. QR had to be reminded that he must be seated so went off to a table of his own, leaving Slotcard to catch up with Rabbit, Short 'N Curly, Grenade, Stopcock (that's 'SC' for those who receive cryptic SMS messages from unknown mobile numbers) Cannon Mouth and Bowerbird.

Growsome, Scotch Mist, Cameron and Andrew had massed in the Car Park not sure if they had booked for One or Four. Joined by Ringless, Hellsmellher and DoubleBanger, the Pack headed out.

Run Report

Sniffer Dog's Sylvania Dawdle

Another Scenic South Side Sylvania Shuffle saw Sniffer's sniffly self-sacrificial stay away (Kenny Calendar would have fun with that), in order that none of us would catch her disease. Sylvania Waters was the scene and a devilishly devious destination was prescribed by the hare to harass her harem (That's the last of the alliteration).

Pig was the late nomination bringing our contingent to twenty, which was really only nineteen cause Sniffer was a no show, which also meant we could've allowed another runner after telling everyone we were full. But it wouldn't have mattered anyway cause nobody else wanted to come so we didn't need to tell anyone anything really.

The club was an excellent venue, with plenty of room, good food and no hare but we were assured she'd set an excellent trail to go with the excellent venue – anyone notice I'm having trouble finding rubbish to write here? Good to see a large number of runners though on a balmy night and the promise of running around Botany Bay foreshore.

So, On was called at 6:34 (where were you Bingo? Derelict in your watch duty) and we headed off west along Belgrave Esplanade with Cameron and Dundee in the lead but missing the arrow sending us down a lane around the shopping centre cause it was hidden around the corner but if they'd kept running they would've been at the head of the run cause it ended up on the same trail that those two were on before they turned back. But that didn't work either as we all played with the traffic and Bingo and Andrew had found an On Back, which sent us back north towards the island.

Scotch Mist was in the lead, being looked after by son Andrew, who seemed to be objecting to the slow pace and began haring off, thereby missing the turn down a side lane, seen by Hellsmellher and DoubleBanger but it wouldn't have mattered if he'd continued on cause it came out further down the same road. Bingo then led us towards the bay and the park that doesn't lead anywhere so Dundee and Pig, who understood the terrain, had found the trail heading up a small hill.

Unfortunately, they missed Cameron taking another fall as his eyesight and his feet are never in sync, which must be his parents' fault as they didn't tell him that feet don't have eyes and if he doesn't watch where his feet are going then he's going to fall over regularly, which he does.

Heading back south to a Check that sent us under the bridge and around to the boardwalk, Scotch Mist had again taken the lead and we were to wonder if this was going to be another epic marathon but no, the trail headed back to a Check on the side road. Dundee found the trail heading up a hill to another bloody big hill and realised he was the only silly bugger on trail cause the others had taken the geriatric flat trail around to the lights at Taren Point Road.

The very lovely and helpful hare had left a nice sign on the trail telling everyone to take care of Dundee but I thought, seeing there was no traffic, it would be a good time to cross. Bingo and Pig had also taken the hint and crossed against the lights so I'm not taking the sole blame. Back to the club and a hearty meal.

Excellent run Sniffer, plenty of arrows, checks and on backs to keep us all together, well worth:

9/10

On On Dundee.

RA's Report

Cold Duck was away on some Dinner Rort and made his apologies via Dirty Weekend.
