Run Report

No run report, one was done, this time the cat ate it, thought the dog was on to a good thing – hang on! they haven't got a cat either.....

CIRCLE REPORT

Hannibal, BA MA PhD and Sexologist, stepped up to the rostrum to deliver tonight's lesson. Once upon a time, on a balmy evening at Kirrawee station, the night porter's life took a turn for the worse when an evil felon slithered silently into his office as he sat at his desk counting the day's takings. The thief bonked the poor porter on the head, sending him temporarily to never never land, nicked the 40 and ran for it. The porter's only recollection was the villain had a "B2H3" badge about his person and was heard to yell "on on" as he fled the scene. Shortly thereafter a house in Popular Place (number 4 to be exact) was purchased by a Mr Cannon for 38 quid. He also bought the Koh-in-Noor diamond for the princely sum of 2 pounds and presented it to Miss B Bird as an engagement present. Eye brows were raised, questions were asked but there was no proof that Mr Cannon was linked to the theft. Besides, Cannon bored the whole of the Kirrawee constabulary to death during questioning so there was no one to arrest him anyway. Mrs Cannon (nee Bower) and Mr Cannon lived in 4 Popular Place happily ever after. The End

Sour Grapes Dundee gave the Run Report and we all wished he hadn't. Talk about whinge!! First whinge: everyone accuses him of shortcutting, he never does and tonight, without even trying the poor old bugger missed four on backs ; second whinge: why did the hare include bush in Winter; third whinge: there were too many hills. Despite the miserable old bastard bagging everything about the run, he scored it 8/10.

Visitors

Hell I Smell Her (all to do with her actual name and I cannot remember what it is) and Andrew. Now Andrew is a special person with a big heart. He has sold his business and his house – why? So he can run from Adelaide to Brisbane of course!! Makes perfect sense when you understand he is going to be running five marathons a week. Is he nuts?? Is he mad?? Probably but he is undertaking this mammoth task to raise $1 million for the butterfly children. There should be a link on our website so please read all about his mission, if there isn't, blame Dundee! A collection was made around the tables and all gave generously – please contribute if you can.

Athletes:

There was one but either Grewsome had forgotten the badge or the athlete had forgotten to turn up.

Birthday wishes to:

No One.

Prickette Nominations

Holeproof nominated JJ who had whinged about the cold and but was standing in the Circle with almost naked feet (sandals) so no wonder the poor old dear was frigid, er, I mean, freezing.

Then fucking Hannibal nominated the scribe because she had a broken toe (thought you were my friend – lawyers, cannot trust them! Some idiot had left another item on the shelf where my heavy wooden bread board has lived since time began. This foreign object had curved handles so when the board was being returned to its usual place, it slipped forward, flew free for a brief instance and came crashing down, little toe just got in the way (OUCH!!!).

Prick Nominations

DW nominated our guest Andrew. Although he was on a noble cause he also did boast about the fact he would be running five marathons a week to cover the distance between Adelaide and Brisbane. Good on you – but why did he not put on his runners, join the pack, and, well, run??

Loan Arranger threw Sir Les' hat into the Circle, last week LA and Squatting Squaw had given him a lift. On the way home, they stopped to get fuel, being the gallant gentlemen, they are, they stayed in situ while SS filled up (equality is alive and well in B2H3). While she was attempting to connect the nozzle to the fuel tank, Sir Les thought it an idea opportunity to drop his daks and moon her to show off his freshly waxed bum. SS is not sleeping well and has frequent nightmares about gleaming buttocks.
